The following fields are of interest to Cameroonian universities: agriculture, American history, American literature, anthropology, archaeology, art, biological sciences, business administration, chemistry, communications, computer sciences, economics, education, engineering, environmental sciences, geography, geology, information sciences, journalism, linguistics, mathematics, medical sciences, philosophy, physics, political science, psychology and sociology.

Degree Requirements
Ph.D. (or other terminal degree) required

Additional Qualification Information

Scholars with a Ph.D. and a minimum two years postdoctoral university or college teaching experience are preferred.

Additional Language Requirement
Language requirements vary per institution due to the bilingual nature of Cameroon. All teaching at the Catholic University of Central Africa is in French. In the other universities, professors may teach in English or French, but they need to have a working knowledge of French. Non-native speakers must submit a language proficiency evaluation.

Invitation Requirement
A letter of invitation is preferred

Additional Comments
In Cameroon undergraduate classes are large in public schools (350-3,500 students and more). Advanced and graduate-level classes tend to be smaller (below 350). Submitting a letter of invitation from the host institution is not required at the application stage; however, a letter of invitation is required to obtain a visa for Cameroon. Applicants are advised to correspond with potential host institutions to determine if their specializations fit into existing programs.
