Award Activity
The Universidade de Sao Paulo (USP) looks for a scholar interested in collaborating with the School of Architecture and Urbanism (FAUUSP)'s in one of the aspects of its urban renewal project. The project in the central neighborhood of the city of Sao Paulo aims to establish methodological parameters for rehabilitation programs that include the current infrastructure and historical elements that have helped develop the city.

The FAUUSP project includes the following aspects:

- Public Policy Management: Strategies for the management and articulation of public policies for the elaboration of an urban renewal program.
- Limits and Potentialities: Public services and spaces, the industry of high technology, and social housing in a dialogue with the pre-existing cultural heritage, with no gentrification.
- Mobility and Sustainability: Study of the actual infrastructure and watersheds that make the landscape in historical sites of the city.
- Urban Heritage: Structuring elements of the local historical formation, identifying the records built in the space that remain in the landscape. History and geography of urban morphology (workers villages, factories, sheds, paths, urban fabric). Study of preexisting architecture in the central districts, language problems, templates, urban relations, density, and urban design.
