Award Activity

Fulbright Israel welcomes applications from innovative U.S. postdoctoral scholars who seek to conduct research at the Weizmann Institute of Science. Grants are open to researchers in all academic disciplines and support research programs in Israel for up to 20 months.

Each candidate is responsible for the arrangement of the institutional affiliations independently, including development of the research program for the proposed visit. Based on Fulbright Israel policy, selected Fulbright postdoctoral fellows must hold official postdoctoral fellow status at their host institutions in Israel, including access to campus resources.

Please contact the Fulbright Israel office at USPrograms@fulbright.org.il ^[1] with any questions or assistance with identifying suitable hosts or contacts.

Award Length

Up to two academic years, minimum of one academic year.

Award Dates

Grants may begin any time between August 2022 - April 2023, as agreed upon with host institution.

Locations

Research activity will take place at the Weizmann Institute of Science. The Weizmann Institute is located in Rehovot, Israel, just south of Tel Aviv. The Weizmann Institute was founded by Dr. Chaim Weizmann (1874-1952) in 1934. The Weizmann Institute of Science was the first to introduce cancer research in Israel and the first to build particle accelerators.

One Nobel laureate and three Turing Award laureates have been associated with the Weizmann Institute of Science.
